

The PV panel removal scam revealed

Overview

Dozens of customers "filed complaints against a company called Pink Energy, which abruptly went out of business in September 2022 and filed for bankruptcy after allegedly selling defunct solar panels and misleading customers about their benefits," said Time. Solar panel fraud has become a growing concern in the United States, leaving many homeowners stuck with hidden fees, inflated energy bills, and contracts they never fully understood. As more families consider solar energy improvements, dishonest companies exploit the fine print in solar panel. Did a salesperson knock on your door and promise free rooftop solar panels at no cost to you?

Or say you'll never have to pay another electricity bill because government programs, grants, or rebates cover your solar installation?

It's likely a scam. But it's also attracted scammers who prey on people's desire to do the right thing for their wallet and the planet. The con starts with a fast-talking salesperson offering a "limited time offer" for a free solar energy install. The big lie: The total cost of the project will be. Since home solar panel installation is still a relatively young business, there's ample room for bad actors to wiggle their way in to make a go at your wallet.
